System Requirements:

The majority of the world's population still have no access to the Internet, and thus no way to play on Linux gaming servers, which is why I have set up the server to use GameSpy's new GameSpy Arcade client. This server runs on Debian and is meant for, well, gaming. NOTE: To make the server work with the GameSpy Arcade client, you must create a GameSpy username and password before you connect. This is all done through the GameSpy control panel. The username and password are included as hints.
